SWEET, ROBERT W.: FILES, 1983-1985

Office of Policy Development, Senior Staff Member, 1983-1985

Domestic Policy Council, Deputy Executive Secretary, 1985-1988 (Separate Inventory)

Biography

Robert W. Sweet Jr. was a former government official for both the executive and legislative branches and was a former teacher and textbook salesman who became an advocate for teaching reading and phonetics.

Robert Weston Sweet Jr. was born in Durham, Maine, March 18, 1937. Having attended a two-room schoolhouse through eighth grade at Crosman Corner in Durham, Maine, he graduated from Brunswick High School in 1955. He also served in the United States Navy Reserve from 1954-1962, and graduated from the University of Maine, Orono, in 1960, with a Bachelor of Arts in English degree. He also completed graduate coursework in chemistry at the University of New Hampshire and wage and salary administration at Brandeis University.

Sweet's career in education began as a high school science and math teacher in Albion, Maine, and continued as a traveling educational salesman in New England. From 1964-1979 Sweet worked for textbook publishers Holt, Rinehart, Winston (1964-1972) and HB (Harcourt Brace) Education Systems (1971-1979). In his years as an educational salesman and consultant Sweet conducted teacher training seminars in educational methodology and material utilization in the classroom at the elementary and secondary level. During that time, he was also a member of the Governor's Commission on Public Education for the state of New Hampshire, for 1973-1974. His work consisted of efforts to recodify state statutes for education and to implement a model voucher plan. Additionally, he served six years as a New Hampshire regional school board representative (1974-1980), where he was the chairman of the board for multiple terms. Robert Sweet was also one of the founders and first President of the Fair Haven Christian School in Essex, MA, which opened in 1977. He ran unsuccessfully for U.S. Congress in 1980 from New Hampshire.

In 1981, Sweet became involved with the Reagan Administration. In July 1981, Sweet was appointed as the Special Assistant to the Assistant Secretary for Education for Elementary and Secondary Education.

Then in February 1982, Sweet was appointed the Director of the National Institute for Education (NIE). He was the head of the then $53 million agency with responsibility for setting the agenda for education research in the nation. He met Mike Brunner who helped him identify topics for research and started a long collaboration between Sweet and Brunner.

Sweet was then appointed to the Office of Policy Development at the Reagan White House, 1983-1985. Under the direction of the Assistant Director for Federalism, Health and Human Resources, he was responsible for assisting in the development and implementation of policies relating to all aspects of education and disability. He chaired the Working Group on Handicapped Policy from 1983-1984 where they studied the current state of federal disability policy and how it could be better improved to assist people with disabilities. The Working Group ultimately recommended establishing a blue-ribbon commission based on the data they gathered.

In 1985, new Chief of Staff Donald Regan reorganized the White House staff Cabinet Council system. The seven Cabinet Councils for the first Administration were reorganized into two bodies: The Domestic Policy Council (DPC) and the Economic Policy Council (EPC). Ralph Bledsoe from the Office of Policy Development became the Secretary/Director of the DPC and Sweet was made the Deputy Executive Secretary. He also continued to coordinate health and education policy. As Deputy Executive Secretary he coordinated working groups on a wide variety of domestic policy issues focusing on his specialties - the handicapped, education and adding AIDS and family issues. His function was to ensure they created legislation and policy that fit under the broad umbrella of the Reagan White House policy directive. Sweet attended Domestic Policy Council meetings and helped draft decision memos for the President, as well as other logistical functions for the Domestic Policy Council. The Reagan Library has a second Sweet collection for his material at the DPC.

During the George H. W. Bush administration, Sweet served as the administrator for the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention where he brought back Mike Brunner to work with him. In 1993, he founded the National Right to Read Foundation, an organization dedicated to giving children the research-based tools they need to learn to read with proficiency and understanding. In 1997, he returned to public service on Capitol Hill as a staff member for the United States House Committee on Education and the Workforce, helping lawmakers write legislation pertaining to education and literacy.

Following his work on Capitol Hill, Bob continued to promote reading instruction based on scientific research through the National Right to Read Foundation. Later in life his work expanded to include the international community of English-speaking nations, engaging his deep interest in the study of reading and learning to read.

Sweet was married to Joy Sweet and they had five children, 29 grandchildren and at least 19 great-grandchildren.

Sweet passed away on July 17, 2019 at his home in Indian Trail, North Carolina.

Scope and Content

Within the Office of Policy Development, Robert Sweet was in charge of developing and monitoring education and disability policy in President Reagan's first administration. This collection documents his work in these two areas for 1983 to 1985.

The largest part of the collection covers his work as the chairman of the Handicapped Policy Working Group (HPWG), which had 3 major goals: (1) encourage care for the handicapped within the context of the family and community; (2) promote integration of the handicapped into society, schools, and the work place; and (3) foster independence and dignity in the lives of handicapped persons.

In addition, this collection documents Sweet's development and implementation of policies relating to all aspects of education, including public and private schools; elementary, secondary, college, and post-college education. Sweet was also overseeing the adoption and implementation of various Reagan Administration goals including tuition tax credits; low-income voucher options; education savings accounts; math and science teaching; student self-help reforms; adult literacy; and school discipline.

This collection consists of original memos, correspondence, drafts of working group papers, reports, studies, and more. Also included are copies made by Sweet for documentation purposes. There is a bit of material from 1982 from other Office of Policy Development members, but mostly on issues tangential to Robert Sweet's work.

The Robert Sweet collection consists of six series. The series are as follows: SERIES I: Handicapped Policy Working Group Files: Subseries A: Subject File; Subseries B: Publications; SERIES II: Education Policy Files; SERIES III: Chronological Files; SERIES IV: Administrative Files; SERIES V: Subject Files; and SERIES VI: Telephone Logs.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

SERIES I: HANDICAPPED POLICY WORKING GROUP FILES, 1983-1985

(5.3 l. ft., Boxes 1-15)

SUBSERIES A: WORKING FILES (4.3 l. ft., Boxes 1-11)

This subseries consists of material relating to Bob Sweet's work as Chair of the Handicapped Policy Working Group (HPWG). The subseries contains Sweet's correspondence with disability organizations, individuals, and government agencies; agendas and meeting notes for the HPWG; newspaper articles and clippings on disability issues; recommendations for committee membership; notes on the federal budget as it pertains to supporting disabled communities; laws and proposed bills affecting the disabled community; analysis of the Department of Justice's interpretation of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973; public criticism leveled at the Justice Department's interpretation of Section 504; and the many drafts and comments that went into drafting the HPWG's final paper which included their recommendations for further action in shaping disability policy for the Reagan Administration.

In order to maintain Sweet's original file system, some folders titles begin with "Working Files:" but those folders do not represent the entirety of his work as part of the Working Group. This series contains all of his work associated with the HPWG with additional copies of memos, correspondence, and other materials existing in other series in this collection. Original folder titles were used when present. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by folder title.

SUBSERIES B: PUBLICATIONS (1 l. ft., Boxes 11-15)

This subseries consists of the publications and reports that Sweet received to better inform him on disability research and advocacy. These publications were originally placed in folders Sweet labelled “Working Files,” but have been moved into a subseries of their own due to the volume of publications he received. The subseries is arranged alphabetically.

SERIES II: EDUCATION POLICY FILES, 1983-1984 (2 l. ft., Boxes 15-20)

This series contains material relating to Bob Sweet’s work on drafting and tracking education policy initiatives within the Reagan administration including timelines; background papers; analysis, memos, letters, and reports of major policy initiatives written by Bob Sweet which includes the block grant program at the Department of Education (DOE); information on abolishing DOE; education saving accounts; school prayer amendment; merit pay for teachers; federalism in education and other actions for the 1984 campaign; questions and answers on policy plans; and correspondence with parents, organizations, and other government agencies. This series also contains Sweet’s memos and letters on issues that were of personal interest to him regarding education issues such as phonics as a method of literacy training; the Working Group on School Discipline in which he was a member; concerns over the negative impacts of the Exemplary Center for Reading Instruction (ECRI); travel arrangements for various education-related conferences and speeches he gave; and newspaper articles and publications on education policy that interested him. Original folder titles were maintained when present. The series is arranged alphabetically by folder title.

SERIES III: CHRONOLOGICAL FILES, 1982-1984 (2 l. ft., Boxes 20-25)

This series contains ingoing and outgoing correspondence from Robert Sweet during his time at the Office of Policy Development. It documents his daily activities and schedule as a member of the Office of Policy Development. The chronological file consists of letters; memos; articles; invitations, transcripts of speeches he gave; travel reimbursements; resumes he received; and personal correspondence either drafted by Robert Sweet or sent to him. It starts in March of 1983 and documents his daily activities through December of 1984. This series is arranged chronologically. Original folder titles were retained in processing.

SERIES IV: ADMINISTRATIVE FILES, 1983-1984 (2.5 l. ft., Boxes 25-31)

This series contains copies of memorandums and correspondence Sweet drafted or received during his tenure at the Office of Policy Development. Sweet labeled these folders as administrative and the Library has retained his series title. In addition to photocopies of memorandum and correspondence related to the HPWG and Education policy, this series also contains budgetary information; the assigned areas of responsibility within OPD; meetings Sweet attended and did not attend; assignments he worked on for Jack Svahn and Robert Porter; correspondence sent to the White House and forwarded to the Office of Policy Development for answer (computer tracking correspondence); and all the logistical information for the events and conferences Sweet attended in his official capacity at the Office of Policy Development. This series is arranged alphabetically by folder title and then chronologically. Original folders were retained in processing.

SERIES V: SUBJECT FILES, 1983-1985 (0.9 l.ft.; Boxes 31-33)

This series contains material related to general topics assigned to Sweet rather than his specific handicapped and education portfolios. The series contains material regarding religious liberties; alternatives to abortion; tax reform; and speeches, messages, interviews, and official appearances given by President Reagan. This series is arranged alphabetically by folder title. Original folder titles were retained in processing.

SERIES VI: TELEPHONE LOGS, 1983-1984 (3 folders, Box 33)

This series contains telephone memorandums of calls coming into Robert Sweet's office as well as messages left for him while he was out. Original folder titles were retained in processing.
